

Fliers By The Church Guys

CultureofFaith@gmail.com

CultureofFaith.wordpress.com

Embracing the Miracles of God

By: The Church Guys

First of all, how do we recognize miracles? A miracle from God is an event which defies the law of nature and reflects God's perfection. Therefore, it's an insult to God to declare unlikely events, close calls, found loves or long odds recoveries... as being miracles. Such "miracles" do not defy nature and only serve to cheapen what God actually does. Anyone suggesting that a few survivors among dozens from a plane crash "is a miracle" is insulting God for including death and destruction as something akin to his perfection! That's insanely blasphemous!

Further one must be sure to KNOW God was the force behind supposed miracles. How many

Christians bear false witness with claims of divine intervention, by not caring to investigate the miracle's source? Are you praising the workings of Satan? ..of natural causes? ..of skillful doctors? ..of random chance? ..of fraudulent hucksters? Imagine the insult to our lord who watches you credit him for a few survivors in mass disaster? Sickening.

The bigger question is: Were you convinced of God's love by one of these misinterpretations?! Did you start believing in God for bad reasons?! Unless you witnessed God himself healing that cripple, you've probably been duped and because of it, you should absolutely question everything you've believed ever since.

Fliers By The Church Guys

CultureofFaith@gmail.com

CultureofFaith.wordpress.com

Embracing the Miracles of God

By: The Church Guys

First of all, how do we recognize miracles? A miracle from God is an event which defies the law of nature and reflects God's perfection. Therefore, it's an insult to God to declare unlikely events, close calls, found loves or long odds recoveries... as being miracles. Such "miracles" do not defy nature and only serve to cheapen what God actually does. Anyone suggesting that a few survivors among dozens from a plane crash "is a miracle" is insulting God for including death and destruction as something akin to his perfection! That's insanely blasphemous!

Further one must be sure to KNOW God was the force behind supposed miracles. How many

Christians bear false witness with claims of divine intervention, by not caring to investigate the miracle's source? Are you praising the workings of Satan? ..of natural causes? ..of skillful doctors? ..of random chance? ..of fraudulent hucksters? Imagine the insult to our lord who watches you credit him for a few survivors in mass disaster? Sickening.

The bigger question is: Were you convinced of God's love by one of these misinterpretations?! Did you start believing in God for bad reasons?! Unless you witnessed God himself healing that cripple, you've probably been duped and because of it, you should absolutely question everything you've believed ever since.